A spring clean is a capital idea

THE capital is set for a spring clean like never before.

A new agreement between Dublin City Business Improvement District and Aramark Ireland promises to improve the cleanliness of 115 city centre streets.

Under the deal, Aramark will provide additional cleaning services to those already carried out by Dublin City Council.

This includes a rapid response hotline for businesses to report urgent cleaning requirements.

Seasonal street cleaning will be provided by power-washing during drier summer months and pavement gritting during winter.

City BID chief Richard Guiney said: "We are delighted to partner with Aramark in providing this service to businesses in the area.

"Cleanliness is vital to creating a pleasant environment where people want to spend time and encourages Dubliners and visitors to shop and socialise."
